CONFERENCES/ SEMINARS/ WORKSHOPSWorld Population Day

World Population Day is an international event to raise awareness of population issues around the world. It is celebrated on 11 July every year since 1989. 11 July was chosen as the date of World Population Day following the birth of a baby boy in Yugoslavia on 11 July 1987. The baby was proclaimed as the five billionth inhabitant of the world, so 11 July 1987 was famous as the Day of Five Billion.

World Population Day 2014 falls on Friday, 11 July 2014.

Origin of World Population Day

On July 11, 1987, a baby boy which was believed as the five billionth people in the world was born in Yugoslavia. The day was commemorated as Day of Five Billion, and the celebration attracted people's attention from many countries around the world. The United Nations then made use the day to raise awareness about reproduction and population issues as well as the implications to the environment. Thus, since 1989, 11 July has been commemorated as the World Population Day.

World Population Day Celebration

World Population Day is not a public holiday, yet, many kinds of activities held to celebrate this global event. The activities such as seminars, public discussions, debate competitions, and counseling concerning population, maternal health, and gender equality are organized by governments as well as non-governmental organizations around the world. Schools and campuses also bring the issues of population to the classroom during World Population Day.

BOOKS, KNOWLEDGE RESOURCES

MUSHROOMS FOR LIVELIHOOD:

By Dr. Vijaya Khader, vijayakhader@gmail.com,

Published by :Kalyani Publishers, New Delhi, ISBN 978-93-272-2798-7 Rs.140/-

Since early times ,mushrooms have been treated as a special item of food. The Greeks regarded mushrooms as providing strength for warriors. The Pharaohs prized them as a delicacy and the Romans called them the Foods for the Gods. The Chinese termed mushrooms as Elixir of life. The Government of Andhra Pradesh has been emphasizing the importance of Agro based exports due to the advantages of rural employment generation and gainful utilization of natural & farm resources. Mushroom cultivation is emerging in India as a promising Agro – based laid independent enterprise due to flexibility in its operation.

Mushroom growing as a cottage Industry is quite valid for Indian growers also because majority of them cannot afford the expensive mushroom houses equipped with boiler and environment controlling gadgets .From the experience, till date, it has been seen that cultivation of pleurotous Spp. Has proved to be the most popular among the people because of its comparative ease in cultivation. Its low capital investment and high yields that obtained even under uncontrolled rural conditions. Another factor which has led its increased popularity is the fact that it lends itself easily to dehydration and hence can be stored for longer periods of times as compared to Agarics Spp. or Volvariella Spp. Proximate composition of mushroom (Dry wt. basis) is Protein 25-37%, Carbohydrates 48-57%, Fat 1.0-3.2%, crude fiber 11-14%, Ash 5-9% , vitamins B1

& B2, Minerals K,Ca,P,Fe and Calories 261-385.

Mushrooms are good source of protein and vitamins for human diet. Low calorie food with low carbohydrate and fat contents. An ideal food for fat persons to reduce their excessive weight.
